AT THE COSMETICS COUNTER
HOW TO CHOOSE AND USE COSMETICS

Has this ever happened to you. You purchase a foundation at the store, where you think it looks great. But the first time you wear it out, your friend says you look orange! Do you have a hard time choosing the right cosmetics? Certainly, feedback from other people can be a big help (although we'd prefer them to be more tactful than this). Salespeople aren't always the best or most impartial guides to what looks good, and store lighting can be deceptive.

In this report, we'll look at points to keep in mind during your next visit to the cosmetics counter.

- What's Your Skin Tone?
- What color is your skin?
- Which colors will look best on it?

These may sound like simple questions, but just wait till you try to choose from all the possibilities in the makeup rainbow.

Certain words are used to describe skin tone, the underlying color of your skin. When you go cosmetics-shopping, you're likely to encounter these terms:

- Porcelain (pale, even-toned skin color). This skin tone, sometimes nicknamed peaches and cream, has been upheld as an ideal for many women. It's more common in fashion magazine photos, however, than in real life.

- Ruddy (undertone of pink or red in the skin).

- Sallow (yellow or golden undertone; little or no pinkness).

- Olive (green or ashy undertone).

BEAUTIFUL HAIR AND NAILS

Janice consulted her primary care doctor because she was worried about losing her hair. For about six weeks, every time she shampooed she discovered a handful of hair around the drain.

To her surprise, she was referred to me. I never thought of seeing a dermatologist about my hair, she told me, politely but frankly. I thought dermatologists dealt with skin. We do, I replied, and believe it or not, that includes your hair and nails. Their good health is related to the health of your skin.

At some point, many of us worry about thinning hair. As it turns out, I was able to reassure Juanita about her hair loss and treat it effectively. Read on and I'll tell you about it.

FUNNY, HAIR DOESN'T LOOK LIKE SKIN!

Hair and nails are skin appendages, part of the complex organ that is your skin. Nails and hair develop from specialized cells that work like the cells that produce the skin's horny layer. Like the horny layer, they contain a type of keratin, a durable protein that makes them more rigid than cells in the rest of your skin. Keratin reinforces hair stands and makes your nails hard.

Like everything else in your skin, hair and nails are there for a reason. Hair, for instance, shields us from sunlight and abrasions, and helps hold in body heat. Nails help us grasp objects and protect the delicate edges of our fingers and toes.

Each hair is born in a hair follicle, a tiny complex structure in the dermis or subcutaneous layer. Each follicle manufactures specialized cells that grow into a single hair. This drawing shows a cross-section of a hair. As you can see, it consists of a central core surrounded by a layer of long thin fibers, packaged in an outer layer of overlapping cells. At the root of each follicle is a tiny rounded area of tissue (called the bulb) that supplies the hair with keratin. When you yank out a hair, the small pale bump you see is the bulb.

THE EYES HAVE IT!

POINTERS FOR MAKING YOUR EYES STAND OUT!

How to Get that Smoky Eye Look

One of the looks that is all the rage lately is the smoky eye. It adds both depth and mystery to your eyes. After all, they are the windows to the soul.

There are many ways to do it. You don't have to be as dramatic as a runway model – unless you want to. Here are some make-up tips for you when it comes to mimicking this effect.

If you are going to use the smoky eye effect, you don't want to pull attention away from your peepers. So, tone down your lipstick and blush to keep the focus on your baby blues or browns. It will also balance your face and keep you from looking clownish.

Applying Your Eye color

The smoky effect is just that – an effect. You can use a variety of different colors to pull it off. Let's begin with make-up for day wear. You wouldn't show up at the office with bright yellow or orange shadow on your eyes. You can still have the smoky look but keep it toned down so it's appropriate for a professional setting.

Darker colors of shadow like brown, gray, black and violet are great for day wear. Choose that color and apply it to your lid. Be sure to carry the color past the outer edge of your eyelid. A swath of the same color is then applied below the lower lid close to the eyelash line. Since you are at work, there is no need to smudge the lower color. Keep it neat.

Apply your eye liner. For daytime, use a liquid liner in an equally dark color like black or brown. Lift the liner pen upward as you reach the outer edge of the upper lid to create a wing. Don't forget the lower lid. Liquid liner is easier to use for this. You can get clean lines that look great in the office.

To Sun Or Not To Sun

We read articles and watch news programs about how the sun can cause premature skin aging, wrinkles, sun spots, and skin cancer. All of this information is important, valuable and true.

We read articles and watch news programs about how the sun can cause premature skin aging, wrinkles, sun spots, and skin cancer. All of this information is important, valuable and true.

To Sun Or Not To Sun

However, we should also think about the benefits of getting out into the sunshine. Our bodies require sunshine in order to produce Vitamin D.

To Sun Or Not To Sun

Vitamin D promotes the body's ability to absorb calcium, and helps maintain adequate levels of calcium and phosphorus. Sunshine also helps prevent or lessen the effects of depression.

Bees For Hire

Bees are amazing little insects. They work so hard they put other insects to shame. They are born with one instinct: "must make honey!"

Bees For Hire

Bees spend all of their time and effort during their lifetime pursuing the single interest of making honey. They live in a complicated, intricate, detailed bee world where each bee has their specific job description.

Bees For Hire

Honey-loving people happily enjoy the result of their efforts. Not only is honey excellent in cereals, teas, candies and breads, it can be used to expand our personal beauty regimes. Using honey, you can create bath solution, shampoo, and body scrubs. It can also be used to treat minor burns.

Fingernails and Toenails

Many years ago, when man relied on instinct and survival skills to stay alive, he used his fingernails and toenails as ways to help fight off enemies, and pick foods from trees and bushes.

Fingernails and Toenails

Now that we do not have to fight animals to stay alive and we can buy our food off the shelf of a very safe grocery store, we do not have much use for our finger and toenails.

Fingernails and Toenails

Evolutionists believe them to be vestigial, leftovers from evolution. If we did not have our finger and toenails, our fingers and toes would still be able to function.

Fingernails and Toenails

However, it would be more difficult to pick up small objects with dexterity. It would also be more difficult to scratch that annoying itch or scratch the itch on a friend's back.

I Want Curly Hair!

It's true that no matter what type of hair you are born with, at some point in your life you are going to be dissatisfied with it. You will find yourself flipping through hairstyle magazines, envying your friends' hair, and wearing a baseball cap to cover up your shame.

I Want Curly Hair!

This is a normal, very common issue. We are bound to get tired of the same old look day after day. We get perms, try out hair relaxers, and experiment with every possible color available in the hair care aisle.

I Want Curly Hair!

But the truth is, eventually we are going to come to grips with our hair whether it if curly, straight, wavy, brown, black, yellow, red or anything in between. Our hair is one of our most unique and versatile physical assets. It is also one we feel have the most control over.

I Want Curly Hair!

Of course, we are going to experiment with it, hate it and then love it again. It is okay to experiment with your hair, to go to war with it and to eventually make peace with it. It is part of who you are and you should embrace it.

Listerine As a Foot Soak?

Did you know that you can soak your toenails in Listerine as a remedy for nail fungus? It contains an antiseptic, which improves your nails' appearance. It is truly remarkable how many common household items you can use to treat your body.

Listerine As a Foot Soak?

You can dab olive oil on top of your nail polish to make it shiny. You can mix sugar and water together to make an all over body scrub. The results of this technique are supposed to be quite impressive. You can use the juice of all kinds of citrus fruits to create facial cleansers, masks, body washes and shampoos.

Listerine As a Foot Soak?

With this in mind, it is surprising that people spend money at the store buying ready-made beauty products. However, I suppose this is the same theory as fast food. You can make your meals at home for a fraction of the cost of going out to eat.

Listerine As a Foot Soak?

However, going out to eat is faster, easier and more convenient sometimes. Just like buying beauty products at the store takes less time than creating homemade beauty products.

Paying Attention To Detail

Our bodies are truly remarkable. They are so complicated that the way they work has been researched and studied throughout time. Yet mysteries remain.

Paying Attention To Detail

It is worth your time and effort to learn as much about your body as you can. This includes knowing of what it is made, why it works the way it works and ways to take care of it.

Paying Attention To Detail

We hear a lot about how to maintain or reach a healthy weight, the best foods to eat to maintain or get healthy and how much exercise we need in order to keep our internal organs working at maximum ability.

Paying Attention To Detail

We don't hear as much about how to take care of the details of the body. Of course, the information is out there, but it isn't as much of a focus as some of the other aspects of healthy living.

A Balanced Life

Human beings are complex, remarkable works of art. We are made up of complicated components that need to work together in order to achieve balance.

A Balanced Life

We are spiritual, sexual, emotional, intellectual and physical beings. We cannot just focus on one component and expect the rest to follow. We need to learn about ways to nurture each part of ourselves.

A Balanced Life

If you take care of your body well, this will influence your ability to think and pray. Your body's health certainly affects your sexuality and emotions.

A Balanced Life

It is important to know how to take care of your body in addition to how to express faith, sexual desire, the spectrum of emotions, and intellectual ability. Some people can become so caught up in exploring and improving one component of their life, the other components suffer.

EYE TIPS:

1. Never Pump Your Mascara

Never pump your mascara (i.e. move the wand up and down in the tube really quickly) because it will only allow air into the tube which will cause your mascara to dry (and ultimately shorten its lifespan).

EYE TIPS:

3. Tame Misbehaving Eye Brows

Spritz an old toothbrush or a clean mascara wand with hairspray, then brush brows and style them as desired. Even the most hard to tame brows will fall in line with this trick.

LIP TIPS:

9. Create Fuller Lips

If you're tired of having thin, pursed puckers, extend your lip line using a neutral-toned lip liner. Then apply lipstick over top. Be careful though — don't extend your lip line too much.

LIP TIPS:

10. Exfoliate Your Lips

Dry, flaky, chapped lips are the worst canvas for lipstick. To ensure that your puckers are in perfect pout condition, exfoliate your lips. To do this, apply lip balm to your lips, then using a toothbrush or clean mascara wand, scrub your lips (don't be too rough). Then, use a tissue to wipe away excess flakes and voila! You'll have a perfect pout in no time.

NAIL TIP:

11. Make Your Manicure Last

Before applying nail polish, wipe nails with an acetone-based cleanser. Cleaning excess dirt, oil or moisturizer from your nails will ensure that the polish adheres properly and lasts much longer.

HAIR TIP:

12. Rinse Hair With Beer Or Vinegar

Rinsing your hair with beer helps restore moisture to your locks while using vinegar will up the ante in shine. Soak your hair in either liquid (not at the same time) for a few minutes, then rinse with cold water.

FACE TIPS:

13. Ice Cubes Keep Fat, Acne And Wrinkles At Bay

Try massaging an ice cube over your face until it melts every night before bed. This will keep fat cells, acne and wrinkles under control.

FACE TIPS:

15. Contouring Creates Dimension

The trick to achieving a chiseled celebrity-like face is to contour. Your face is three dimensional so applying foundation in a single tone will only make your face appear flat. Add a highlighter to areas of your face that would usually catch light but create enough shadow to emphasize your jaw line and cheekbones.

FACE TIPS:

16. Toss Those Makeup Sponges

Makeup sponges help you apply make up, but not without a cost. They usually soak up more liquid foundation than what ends up on your face. The result? You're wasting foundation and constantly buying new sponges. The fix? Get a foundation brush. You waste less foundation and it allows for a more even and precise application than a sponge would.

FACE TIPS:

20. Microwave Lotion Into Luxury

Who doesn't love a spa day? If we could go every day, we probably would, but that would also put a dent in our wallets. A quick, easy and cheaper indulgence is to put your favorite lotion in the microwave for about 10 seconds. Make sure the oils in your lotion don't separate and that it isn't too hot. Apply it on to your skin and enjoy!

FACE TIPS:

21. Know Your Shade

When choosing a foundation, test a product on the skin near your jaw line. And be sure to do it in natural light. This will ensure the foundation tone you choose for your face isn't too different from the natural shade of your neck.

FACE TIPS:

24. Smile... A Lot!

Our final and best beauty tip? Smile! It's the most beautiful asset you have. Use it every day!
