BUDGET HOME DECORATING TIPS FOR EVERY ROOM IN YOUR HOUSE

For anybody, decorating on a budget can be a challenge, but it also can be very rewarding. It will also teach you how to showcase your home. In this report, we will provide great ideas and tips for decorating various rooms within your home without going over budget.

Just by adding a few small, but creative and decorative details, you can make any home look like a million dollars. As long as you approach your decorating on a budget creatively, it should not only save you money, but will be fun also.

If you want to create the perfect look for your home, and you are on a budget, then you need to get creative. It is not impossible to design a new look for any room in the home on a shoestring. So as long as you are willing to invest your time and energy, then you should be able to make a room go from plain to perfect in no time at all.

As already mentioned above, decorating on a budget can be fun. So instead of looking at the more expensive items that are available, why not instead start looking at their inexpensive counterparts. There are plenty of companies around which offer items that look as good as the more expensive items for the home, at half the price.

The real test for anyone who is decorating on a budget is their ability to take an inexpensive item, and then be able to camouflage its real value. So what they should be able to do is make a $10 item look like a $100 item instead. This can certainly be achieved, all it requires is a little patience, and a little decorating know how.

However, when decorating on a budget, it does not mean that you have to cut down on the quality of everything that you want. Not only can decorating on a budget be fun, but if creatively undertaken, it can also be done with flair and style.

It is important when doing any decorating on a budget that you have a plan. So you need to know what furniture you need (if any). What color scheme do you want for each room? What style do you want? By doing this, you will not waste

DECORATING YOUR FIRST PLACE... ON A BUDGET

For many, decorating is not an option. They feel it is something only the wealthy can enjoy. This could not be further from the truth. Whether you live in an apartment, a dorm, or a small home, interior decorating can be fun and enjoyable. You CAN decorate without breaking the bank, provided you follow a few key steps and use a few practical tools.

These "tools" include setting a budget that allows you to redecorate or decorate your home or other living area. If you do not have a budget already, the first step toward budgeting for interior decorating is saving money so you CAN enjoy interior decorating. Once you do that, you inventory your living space and get busy.

Many people's first "home" is an apartment. Many people live in an apartment instead of a traditional family "home." Some are small, others large.

Regardless, there are a million different ways to decorate an apartment without spending a bundle. This guide provides you with the top ten must have items for decorating your first apartment. Pay attention however, because we will also show you multiple places you can find fine furniture and other collectibles for use when decorating your apartment.

Apartment decorating is much like interior decorating for an ordinary home, but on a much smaller scale.

Depending on whether you rent or own your apartment, you will have more or fewer choices available to you when decorating. If you rent for example, you may not be able to paint any of the rooms in your apartment, or change the carpeting or flooring.

You CAN however, buy some inexpensive throw rugs if you want to create a specific ambience in your apartment. If you do not find the color of the walls you like attractive, you can always buy some sheer fabric at any hobby shop or design store and hang this fabric from your walls. You can also use sheer fabric as drapes to lighten up the look and feel of your apartment.

NATURAL AND ECO-FRIENDLY HOME DECORATING IDEAS

Nature-Inspired Spring Decorating Ideas

Nature provides some amazing decorating options. And if you're environmentally conscious or simply inspired by the outdoors there's nothing better than bringing a bit of it indoors. Decorate with nature!

Flowers

The simplest way to decorate with flowers is to cut them from your garden and bring them indoors. You can get creative with the container or vase to add flair. For example, an old bucket packed with large blooms can be quite striking.

Dried flowers can be used to create interesting elements to your home. You can laminate them and create coasters, placemats and even wall art.

A single large bloom cut from its stem can be added to a decorative bowl filled with water. Add a few floating candles and you have a serene centerpiece.

Rocks, Shells, or Pine Cones

Fill a basket with large pine cones for a smile lodge feel. Add drama by painting the pine cones with glitter, silver or gold spray paint.

River rocks can fill a tall glass vase or be used to surround a candle in glass holder. Likewise small shells can be used to fill a vase or hold a candle. Larger rocks or shells can be used independently as a focal point. Large shells or rocks can be used as bookends as well.

Plants

Plants are of course an easy way to bring nature inside your home. However, rather than simply putting a plant in a decorative pot you can get creative. For example, you might craft a basket out of chicken wire. Using a plastic liner you could fill it with dirt, place several succulents or cacti in the dirt and then place decorative river stones or sand to conceal the dirt.

IS A CAREER IN INTERIOR DESIGN RIGHT FOR YOU?

Have you ever seen a beautiful house or office building and wondered who did the work? Have you ever wished that you could do some of the work that you've seen elsewhere? Many people wonder what it would be like to be an Interior Designer, but they rarely ever go beyond thinking about it.

If you really want to know if Interior Design is right for, this book will be your comprehensive guide to the ins and outs of the business. In this report, you will learn what it takes to be an Interior Designer, what it costs to get certified, you will get all the techniques on how to get started, and much, much more.

An interior Designer is a consultant. You are there to beautify any particular environment as well as provide your clients with the service of explaining why you are recommending, and doing the things that your project will require. You must educate your client about interior design as well as design.

You have obviously given the idea of being an Interior Designer serious thought or you wouldn't be reading this. Of course, like most people, you are probably wondering whether or not it is the right choice for you. I can guarantee you, that after you've read this, you will know for sure if Interior Design is the right career choice for your future.

Interior Design can be a very lucrative job choice for the right person. You might be wondering exactly what an Interior Designer does. It is really simple. An Interior Designer creates, organizes, and designs commercial and/or residential properties. Basically, an interior designer works with the interior of a particular space, such as rooms, offices, boardrooms, and various other internal spaces. Here is a list of some of the places that interior designers can work in.

WINDOW TREATMENT WISDOM

Building With Windows In Mind

There is a lot to think about when designing a home, as many people simply overlook window treatments. In this article, I'm hoping to help you avoid the common pitfalls involved and help you save some money.

When using decorative casing such as shutters and 2 inch plantation size wooden blinds, you should always make sure that you have at least 2 1/2". When you have a double or triple window encased within one window opening, you may want to use a vertical trim strips between each window. Make sure that you include this when measuring the depth. Even though it is less common decorating sliding doors, make sure that you include the handle when you measure, as the usual depth for this is 4 inches.

There are several different styles of window treatments, such as circular, arched, eyebrow arched, or even angles. All of them are beautiful and appealing, although very restricted when it comes to choices, especially when you are working with eyebrow and 1/4 arches.

When you are dealing with French doors there are a few things to keep in mind. The doors will normally swing open into the home, which could cause problems with the valance you use. Consider using a valance mounted to the door or allowing the doors to swing outward. When you are considering shades, blinds, or shutters, don't forget to consider the handles and locks.

Make sure that when you are considering window treatments that you remember window placement as well. There are many restrictions when you have chair rails or base boards going around the opening of the window. There could also be a problem with the placement of the drapery as well.

The drapery may not stack back sufficiently or the outside edge may not extend to the outside of the window. Things can go much easier if you have the same amount of space on each side of the window, so you should try to center the window whenever you can.

CLOSET ORGANIZATION MADE EASY

Closet Organizer Kits

Do you want to get your closet in shape? Are you tired of not being able to find anything in there? If you are stumped on how to do it, consider purchasing a closet organizer kit. These kits come with everything you need to get the project underway and completed effortlessly. You can do it yourself with some very basic tools that most of us have at home including a drill, screws, nails, a hammer, and a good level. Once you have your closet organizer kit in place you will wonder how you ever survived before you had it!

While you can purchase closet organizers separately, using a kit is going to save you money. You will also get all the necessary brackets and installation items you need to get the job done correctly. A closet organizer kit is a great way to have items that accent each other and give your closet space an appealing look in addition to taking advantage of all that open space you aren't using right now.

To make the closet organizer kit installation process easier, look for one that is partially put together with minimum assembly required. Look for adjustable organizer kits. Most require you to have wall studs to brace the screws and nails. If you don't have studs then you can still use a closet organizer kit by installing wall anchors. Make sure you use the right type of closet organizer kit for your type of closet. Some are specific for a particular size of closet or for a walk in closet area.

Installing a closet organization kit is possible for anyone who can use basic power tools and follow step by step instructions. Some of the closet organizer kits are harder to install than others so make sure you get one that you will be able to install. If the option you won't isn't something you feel comfortable installing then get someone who more knowledge to do the job for you or to assist you.

It is easier to install a closet organizer kit if you have an assistance that can hold the organizer items in place while you are installing them. They can help you make everything level as well as run and get any tools that you may have forgotten to bring inside for the project. If you are using heavy wood materials, it is going to be much simpler with an extra pair of hands.

HOW TO TIDY UP YOUR CLOSET

Why you Should Organize your Closet

Most of us have to tackle our closet each morning. If you have one that is full of items you don't have a place for, then it could be a daily routine you have come to dread. The thought of getting your closet organized may be on your list of items to accomplish some day. Why not make that day today? Taking the time to customize your closet space can give you a feeling of accomplishment. It is also a way to start your day in a calmer frame of mind. Most of us have enough stressful events taking place during the day. Finding two shoes that match so you can get to work on time shouldn't be one of them.

Take a good look at your closet in its entirety. How much of the room in your closet is actually being taken up by your clothing, don't count the ones piled up on the floor! How much space is just wide open and not being used? In most cases, at least twice as much closet space is just bare compared to what you are using. Most closets have a similar layout – one long clothes hanging rod and a shelf above it. If this is how your closet layout is, then why not make some changes and start using that space?

Before you run out and purchase closet organization products or a kit, take your time and do some research on your options. Don't use this as an excuse to put off finding the right closet organization system! Make sure that time goes to good use. Find out all you can about various closet organization systems, manufactures, and the materials you can choose from. You will also want to find out the various custom closet products and the cost. Don't forget to find out about warranty information or the installation time expected.

Your search is going to have to include finding quality closet organization products that will work well for the dimensions of your closet space. It can get tricky measuring and detailing the layout, so make sure you double check all of your measurements before you make a purchase or you start the installation process.

Doing this type of research is going to ensure you have the best experience possible selecting a custom closet organization system that works great for you.

EXPERT TIPS ON TIDYING YOUR STUFF

On Your Mark, Get Set, Go - How to Make Tidying Fun

If you ask the majority of people, they will tell you that they do not like to clean. It's no wonder that kids aren't happy to do it either. But, it's never too late to teach your kids how to tidy up and have a bit of fun while they do it.

Kids of all ages love to compete with each other. You can use that tidbit to your advantage when it is time to clean up.

Before you do anything, get yourself organized. If the kids are supposed to be cleaning their bedroom, be sure to have containers for certain items sitting in the middle of the floor. The kids need to know where to put the items once they pick them up. It also allows you to walk behind them and watch what they do.

1. Place pictures on the outside of each storage container, closet door or drawer. Each picture will denote what is supposed to go in that area. For instance, one storage bin may have a picture of a race car to store all car-type toys. Make it more interesting by timing them to see who can get the most toys in the appropriate container in five minutes.

2. Use the alphabet. Starting with the letter A, ask the kids to pick up each item off the floor that begins with that letter. You can give kids a heads up by using their items as the examples you shout out for each letter you call.

3. Ask the kids for decorating advice. If the task at hand is cleaning their room, ask them to tell you where they want certain toys and other items. When they choose a space, you can help them to re-position their toys.

4. Turn the cleaning day into a scavenger hunt. This requires a little more work on your part in the beginning to make this a hit. List each toy, piece of clothing, book and such that your kids have out of place on a piece of paper. Give each person an item to find. They have 90 seconds to find the item and put it away.

HOW TO FIND YOURSELF AND GET THAT UNIQUE 'YOU' ORGANIZED!

"Don't say you don't have enough time. You have exactly the same number of hours per day that were given to Helen Keller, Pasteur, Michelangelo, Mother Teresa, Leonardo DaVinci, Thomas Jefferson and Albert Einstein." - H. Jackson Brown, Jr.

If you recognize yourself in the above descriptions, you're not alone. Millions of families are finding themselves in the same predicament. There's so much to do, and so little time to them all.

And when it comes to getting organized, it's a little similar to the weather. Everyone talks about it, but no one does anything about it. Or they make a half-hearted attempt at getting organized, but they never push through. Two weeks later, the disaster comes back, sometimes worse than ever.

That day planner you purchased is useless unless you use it constructively. It won't automatically help you with your time organization problems, unless you put it to good use. List carefully everything of importance in your life. Write your schedule in it, give the time necessary to each item, and remember to make an appointment with yourself. Use that planner to your best advantage, or it will just become a beautiful leather paperweight.

Write down all the tasks that absolutely must be done, any errands that must be run, any appointments you must keep, and any deadlines coming up. Take a few minutes each evening to review what's due the next day. This allows you to plan for the meals that have to be fixed, what you need to wear, and where you need to be the next day. Resist the temptation to overbook yourself for each day. There is only so much you can cram into a single day. If you overload your schedule, you'll find it impossible to finish all the tasks you've set for yourself. You'll just be depressed or frustrated if you don't accomplish all your tasks.

So, let's take the process step-by-step, starting with the basics. Do you constantly find yourself losing your keys? If you're so disorganized that you can't find something as simple as your keys, how are you ever going to get your home, your office, your kids, and your personal life organized?

HOW TO ORGANIZE YOUR HOME & HEARTH: THERE IS A HOME UNDER ALL THAT CLUTTER!

"Time goes by so fast, people go in and out of your life. You must never miss an opportunity to tell those people how much they mean to you." - Anon

Many families are finding themselves in the midst of a clutter crisis and are totally at a loss as to how to bring order to their chaotic homes. Whether your clutter crisis is confined to one room or if your home seems to be a hopeless cause, terrifying even to think about, you can bring order to that chaos.

Do you find the sheer volume of the clutter in your home daunting? Never fear! There is a way to find that lovely home of yours again. Despite the stacks of papers, newspapers, magazines, the piles of clothes, and other belongings everywhere, you can find your furniture and floors again. You can learn to enjoy your home once more.

Have you stopped inviting friends and family over to visit because you're embarrassed to have anyone see how you're living these days? Do you find yourself sleeping on half your bed, because of the piles of clothes on the other side? Are your children taking over the living room with their toys, because there's no room for them to play in their own bedrooms? Is your family eating dinner on their laps because your dining table is stacked three feet high with papers and magazines?

As bad as it might seem now, there is a way to deal with this kind of disorganization and disorder. And don't worry, it's painless and inexpensive. It will require some work on your part and that of your family. If you get the whole family in on the organizing, you could even have some fun together.

For starters, deal with only one room at a time. A houseful of clutter and chaos is too overwhelming. You need to break it down into small jobs that are more doable and less intimidating. Taken as a whole, you'd run screaming into the night, or want to run away from home, before you'd be brave enough to tackle a whole house at once.

INTERIOR DECORATION PROFIT PACK

HOW TO ORGANIZE YOUR OFFICE: FIND ALL THAT MISSING TIME!

"Nothing is a waste of time if you use the experience wisely." - Rodin

Now you have your home and family well organized. Now you're ready to tackle your workspace and work life. At work, organization starts with your relationships with your co-workers and your boss.

Just like you did with your home space, take a good long look at your work to-do list. How many items on that list are vital, urgent, important must-dos? Be honest with yourself. Is the world going to end if you don't do each and every task on that list? Get rid of the non-essential items on that list; you'll save yourself more time by working on the must-dos instead. Don't confuse busy work with effective, creative accomplishment. Looking busy is not the point of this exercise. Finding what's really important and critical is the point.

Don't let the mundane day-to-day stuff crowd out the real work. If you find your day is taken up with running around putting out small fires, you may want to re-evaluate your system. How are you going to find time for the highly productive, creative parts of your life?

So, it's time to reorganize your work priorities. Take a good look at your job description. Have they begun to blur a bit around the edges? Have you discovered that you've gradually pulled away from your original intentions? Have you helped a co-worker with a task that has mysteriously, over time become part of your job now? Maybe it's time to return to the basics.

Resign yourself to the fact that there are going to be tasks you never get around to doing. If you feel guilty and disappointed in yourself for not accomplishing these tasks, you'll hinder your own productivity. Face the facts, you cannot do it all, it's not going to happen. You're only going to wear yourself down to a nub by trying, then feeling guilty for not being able to do them all. And that gets in the way of accomplishing the next task.

Keep in mind that working incredibly long hours day after day for months on end will eventually result in losing your perspective on some tasks. You'll lose sight and focus on what is really important.

HOW TO ORGANIZE YOUR HOME OFFICE: WORKING THAT DREAM JOB!

"All that really belongs to us is time; even he who has nothing else has that." - Baltasar Gracian

Many people dream of being able to work from their home, running their very own home-based business. They dream of having a more flexible schedule, being able to go out to lunch with friends, work any time of the day they choose, and not have a boss looking over their shoulder. Ahhh, what freedom!

However, time management is often more difficult for the person working in a home office than it is for someone in a conventional office atmosphere. The home worker has to learn to be a self-starter. There's no boss around to check on you and make sure you're on track. It can also be a very lonely workplace, since there are no co-workers in your home office.

It's more important than ever to have your schedule laid out the day before; so as soon as you get up and get ready to start your day, you know what's on the agenda first thing. Try to analyze your workweek to determine where you're losing time and where you can economize and find more time to finish your projects. There are time wasters lurking even in the home office.

Flexibility brings with it a price to pay. You may not have the time even to go out to lunch, unless you're meeting with a client. The dream of working a couple of hours, then running around with friends all afternoon is just that - a dream. If you're the only worker in your little home office, you don't have time to run around, unless it's related somehow to your business.

Instead of co-workers hanging around your office or cubicle, it may be friends who just thought they'd drop by and see if you'd like to go get some coffee or lunch. In their eyes, you work at home, so you can just drop everything, since your schedule is so flexible. You may have to get tough with these well-meaning types. Let them know that just because you work at home, doesn't mean you can just drop everything and play. Working at home is still working. If you stop every time someone wants to visit, you'll wind up making up that time at night or weekends and you'll soon have no time to rest and relax. JFK told us, "Time is a tool, not a crutch."

HOW TO ORGANIZE YOUR MONEY: YOU MAY BE RICHER THAN YOU THINK!

"I have enough money to last me the rest of my life, unless I buy something."
- Jackie Mason

When you're cleaning out your closets, did you find that old shoebox full of receipts, statements, and bills? Now it's time to stop procrastinating and go through the bits and pieces of your financial life. You've done so well and straightened out the rest of your personal and professional life, it's time to handle the money part too.

Most people who find themselves disorganized when it comes to their homes and offices also find they are disorganized when it comes to their finances. Avoidance of all messes becomes a habit that's hard to break. Very few of us like to dig through the receipts, cancelled checks, bills, and credit card statements. A root canal would be preferable to balancing that checkbook. It doesn't have to be that way. Remember how good you felt when you conquered the disorganization of the rest of your home and office? Trust me, you'll feel just as good, or even better, dealing with the money mess.

Plan to give yourself a few hours time to deal with this paper clutter. Let's start with that box of paper clutter you found while cleaning out your closet. Then gather all the other papers, bits and pieces, statements, bills, file folders, and everything that constitutes your financial life, and lay them all out on the dining room table. Don't forget to look through your purse, pockets, etc. anywhere you may have stashed a receipt or two. Be sure to place a trashcan near the table. Arm yourself with plenty of brand new file folders, large envelopes, pens, and some color-coded stickers. You may want to purchase a small portable file holder, just for bills, etc.

Drag everything out and start sorting through the piles of papers. Checks in one pile, business receipts in another, credit card statements in another, paycheck stubs in another, etc. until you've gone through every single piece of paper. Discard old receipts that aren't useful anymore. Use color-coded stickers to help you keep everything straight and organized.

YOUR TRAVEL TIME
SURVIVING YOUR VACATION

HOW TO ORGANIZE YOUR TRAVEL TIME: SURVIVING YOUR VACATION!

"No one realizes how beautiful it is to travel until he comes home and rests his head on his old, familiar pillow." - Lin Yutang

Ah, the joys of traveling! The actual traveling is fun; it's the preparation for traveling that keeps many people at home. Getting everyone ready, packed, and out the door doesn't need to be hectic, painful, or stressful. With just a few pointers and a little organization, you can have a great vacation.

So, you've already picked your vacation site and you've decided the time of year you'll be going, so you know what you need in the way of clothes, shoes, etc. But where do you start to make sure the whole family is organized and ready to go?

When it comes to your luggage, buy the sturdiest, best made pieces that you can afford. You'll be glad you did. Traveling is hard on luggage; you don't want pieces falling apart in the middle of your trip that have to be replaced mid vacation. There are many kinds of luggage; what you buy will depend on where you're going, how long you're staying, etc. If you've decided to go camping, get the sturdiest, waterproof type of backpacks you can find. They need to stand up to the elements and rough going.

As you're picking out the luggage for your vacation, look for sturdy locks and catches that don't give easily and hinges that can take the strain without breaking. Make sure you keep those suitcase keys in a safe place, preferably in your carry-on luggage, purse, or pocket. Whether you need soft side luggage or the harder shell type will depend on what you plan to carry inside. Soft side luggage is great for clothing and shoes, but if you are planning to pack breakable pieces, like bottles and other toiletries, the harder shell type luggage is what you need.

For your carry-on pieces, keep in mind that the bag will have to go through security devices and must be a certain size. Check with the airports you'll be traveling through for their size requirements and also for any restrictions. Be prepared for all contingencies. This lessens the stress at the airport, especially if you're responsible for getting small children on board safely.

ORGANIZING THE SPECIAL EVENTS IN YOUR LIFE: PARTY PLANNING TIME MANAGEMENT

"Between too early and too late, there is never more than a moment."
- Franz Werfel

Do you look forward to the special events in your life, or do you dread those dates as they pop up? Maybe you think you just don't have the time to plan a party; you barely have time to attend an occasional party, let alone throw one of your own. With a few tips and techniques and a little organization, you can host a party that people will remember for years.

How about that big anniversary your parents are about to celebrate? Wouldn't they love a big bash with all their friends invited to share this important milestone with them? Throw them an anniversary party they'll never forget.

Before you plan a single thing however, talk to them about what they'd like. Their idea of a great celebration might not be exactly what you would have planned; but this is their day, remember? Will it be casual or formal? You can make it as simple as a backyard barbecue, or as fancy as dinner and dancing at a classy restaurant. Talk to any siblings as well, to see if they'd like to get in on the fun. If you're on a tight budget, let them pitch in to help with the planning and the fun. This is how families make memories.

The bigger the bash, the more time you'll need for planning and organizing. Don't wait until the last minute to try and throw together something as big as an anniversary party.

Depending on what has been decided for a theme, and whether it's to be casual or formal, you may need the services of a rental company. Just about every large city or town has a rental company that will rent out everything from tables and chairs to cutlery and china and everything in-between.

Once you've decided on the date and a venue for the party, you'll need a guest list as soon as possible. If you've decided on the theme, it's time to go shopping for invitations; or if you wish, you can design one on your computer and print them out yourself. Check out your nearest office supply store for a wonderful selection of paper and cards perfect for the do-it-yourself type. This takes a little time, but

ARE YOU MAKING TIME FOR YOUR LIFE?

"Time is a gift; given to you, given to give you the time you need, the time you need to have the time of your life." - Norton Juster - The Phantom Tollbooth

So much to do, so little time! Haven't we all used that phrase at one time or another in our lives? Thanks to technological advances, it seems like the more time we free up, the more activities we find to stuff into that "free" time. We're busier now than we've ever been at any point in human history.

"If time flies when you're having fun, it hits the afterburners when you don't think you're having enough," Jef Mallett said.

Many people operate under the assumption that time is a scarce commodity. It's hard, as a human being, to think of time in any way except in linear terms. However, there is clock time and there is psychological time.

Information overload is another malady of the 21st century. We have it coming at us from every direction - television, radio, newspapers, magazines, daily mail, catalogs, newsletters, etc. Every time we turn around, we're being bombarded with more information.

Max Frisch said, "Technology is a way of organizing the universe so that man doesn't have to experience it." So, is technology really our friend or our foe?

We long for the "good old days" when life was slower, less busy, and much less frantic. People used to relax in the evenings, read books, and just kick back. Well, not any more these days. Every minute of every day is filled to capacity with more and more activities.

Women especially have much fuller days than ever before. Most work a full time job, and then go home to another full time job. She's chief cook, bottle washer, homework helper, washerwoman, and housekeeper. Much has already been written on how a woman balances work and family.

Gloria Steinam said, "I have yet to hear a man ask for advice on how to combine the time for marriage and a career."
